FLOOR DEBATE

March 18, 2004 LB 1089

Wehrbein, could you yield again to some of the questions that I had asked before?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Yes, you'll have to repeat.

SENATOR BOURNE: Sure. And again, what I was saying earlier is that on page 7 of the blue book, the deficit there is about $195 million in the out years, 2006-2007. Now that reflects the eventuality or the possibility that the hundred and some million dollar low-level judgment, that $160 million low-level judgment is reflected in the $195 million?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Yes.

SENATOR BOURNE: Okay. But again, like I discussed before, that $195 million is assuming the hazardous waste judgment, plus it's assuming 6.9 percent revenue growth?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Yes.

SENATOR BOURNE: Okay. And we haven't really...historically, that's probably an accurate number but at least over the last three, four or five years, we haven't realized those revenue growth numbers. Is that accurate?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Yes. And I...maybe you and you're...on page 14, shows the historic revenue growth and demonstrates the cyclic nature of revenue. That might be worth studying, too.

SENATOR BOURNE: You bet. And I did look at that. And the 6.8 and the 6.9 percent numbers, they are within the realm of reasonability, given the historical nature of our receipts?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Yes.

SENATOR BOURNE: Okay. But if those numbers don't come in right, if we don't really realize the 6.9 percent revenue growth, the $195 million will increase?
